JOIN US IN MAKING A DIFFERENCE IN THE LIVES OF WOMEN LIVING WITH CANCER

On behalf of the women we serve, thank you for taking the time to learn about The Foundation for Living Beauty.

We are pleased to invite you to demonstrate your commitment to making a difference in the lives of women living with cancer.

Your generosity and support will allow us to continue educating, uplifting and empowering the courageous women we serve, increasing their chances for quality of life and allowing them the emotional and physical well-being necessary for their healing.

OUR MISSION

Founded in 2005, The Foundation for Living Beauty, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, is an activity and service oriented organization dedicated to enriching the lives of women affected by cancer. Living Beauty exists to empower, uplift and support women on their cancer journey.

With the advancement of cancer treatments, more women are left struggling to cope with the taxing effects long term. Living Beauty helps women find and sustain quality of life in the physically and emotionally exhausting cancer journey through Wellness Retreats, Support Events and Integrative Therapy Workshops. Our programs support hundreds of women in the greater Los Angeles area and are provided free of charge.

THE FOUNDATION FOR LIVING BEAUTY PRESENTS DINNER UNDER THE STARS MAY 2018

Join the Foundation for Living Beauty for an evening of cocktails and culinary delight as we raise awareness and funds directly benefiting the lives of women living with cancer. This major donor dining experience will host 60 of Living Beauty's most generous donors to an uplifting and celebratory evening under the stars, at the home of Amie and Asif Satchu.

Last year's event, hosted by special guest chef 17-year old Flynn McGarry, was truly a unique culinary experience where guests indulged in a gastronomical 5-course meal and danced the night away to live music under the stars. Living Beauty's past fundraisers have been supported by both major donors and celebrities and received international press coverage in Vogue, Harpers Bazaar, Glamour, In Style, WWD and US Magazine.

Lanvin and the Foundation for Living Beauty Stage a Fashion Show

The following night, beauty was the focus. "I want to see beautiful women, not beautiful clothes," Alber Elbaz has been known to say, but Saturday, at the Foundation for Living Beauty's Third Annual Fashion Fundraiser presented by Lanvin, there was plenty of both. Exhibit A: Jennifer Morrison in a red silk satin Lanvin shift, standing in the grand entryway of the Beverly Hills home of Asif Satchu and his wife, Amie, who founded the organization, which educates women on the risk of cancer and supports and empowers women living with cancer. Morrison was soon joined by Olivia Munn, who looked equally stunning in a black and purple Lanvin minidress. "Lanvin pieces just have this really great effortless, timeless elegance," mused the actress as she admired the party decor: mannequins glistening in lamé looks from the spring collection. Emma Roberts, just back from the New York premiere of her new film, Palo Alto, slipped in as the live auction to raise funds for wellness retreats for cancer patients began. Sitting beside her, Emmy Rossum had been waiting patiently for a chance to bid on a dinner prepared by a private chef, and when it looked like the auction would be cut short to start the show, the actress transformed into a perhaps temporary, but certainly efficient auctioneer, selling the item twice, to herself and another bidder. "I got a dinner party. You're invited!" Rossum declared triumphantly to Roberts, before graciously addressing the crowd, "You're all invited!" And with that, the celebration of beauty continued as confetti-wielding models wearing Lanvin's 2014 pre-fall collection descended down the runway.
